This Is The Way It Was

This monthly photo column by Ken Murdock features railroad scenes of the past, a look back into railroading's history.

In the late 1940s there were two very active railfan clubs in the Tampa Bay area. They were the Peninsular Railfans Club of St. Petersburg and the Tampa Railfans Club. They jointly sponsored excursions on the ACL that were known as the Shutterbug Special. This photo was one of their many photo runbys that were called "stop and shoot" at that time. ACL 4-6-2 #427 was the motive power and the train was all heavy weight coaches. - ACL News, CFRHS collection

Their trips ran from Tampa to Rainbow Falls with enough layover time there to picnic, swim and ride the glass bottom boats. This photo was taken during a 30-minute stop in Lakeland to tour the ACL shops and pick up passengers. They were permitted to climb on locomotives, blow the whistle, ring the bells and climb into the pits. This must have been before the ACL was run by lawyers! - Hal Sanborn photo, CFRHS

This photo and the first were taken on their third excursion of the season on May 1, 1949, and they had 130 passengers on board. This photo was taken during a stop in Trilby to take water and coal. Note the concrete coaling tower which adds one more to last month's subject of coaling towers. George W. Pettengill was president of the St. Petersburg club and Charles Campbell was president of the Tampa club. - ACL News, CFRHS collection

February 2017 Museum Report

By Ken Murdock, Museum Curator

February got off to a good start with our Wednesday workdays. The first two Wednesdays we almost completed the drywall work in phase one which includes the new Library and Work Shop. Jerry Honetor and I worked mainly in the Roper Building on new construction with Al Sharp helping there and working on the inventory of recently donated items. Irv Lipscomb also worked on inventory of items in the flat files and Ginger Honetor continued with keeping the silver polished and the showcases clean, inside and out. Jerry and I made another run to Lowes on the Wednesday, the 8th, to purchase more building materials which included pre-hung doors, lumber for trim, paint, rollers and caulking.

We had a donation from a gentleman in Orlando which included three hand lanterns, a Handlan L&N, a Handlan Missouri Pacific and an unmarked Adlake. Also included was a logger's cross-cut saw with a helper's handle and a balance beam scale. The last two items could have been used by the railroads but neither were marked. Jerry Honetor donated a set of blueprint steam locomotive drawings from the Kansas City Southern in very good condition.

David Rhea brought back some beautiful oak boards from Indiana for use on the Fairbanks freight cart that he is restoring with Bill Walters' help. David also took the badly bent steel frame of the cart to Florida Metal Crafters to have it straightened. When he gets it back it will be ready to reassemble and paint. David is also repainting the "Winter Garden" station sign that hangs on the west end of the museum. David and Bill are doing both projects at David's home. Thank you, David and Bill!!

On the February 11th, we held our monthly museum workday. We had seven members participating that included Phil Cross, Jerry and Ginger Honetor, Phil Piet, Al Sharp, Jarrod Reynolds and your curator. Phil Cross cleaned up around the outside and then took care of the housekeeping chores inside. Ginger cleaned showcases and polished silver. I finished sanding the drywall in the work shop and the others painted the walls and ceilings in the two new rooms with a primer coat. We finished the Library and about half of the Work Shop. We had a very good day and are almost ready to apply the final coat of paint.

Then on the third Wednesday of the month Jerry and I installed the pre-hung doors for the library and Work Shop and installed the window frame for the inside window in the library. I made the window frame at home where I have a table saw for cutting the special width boards required. Ginger was there as usual polishing silver and cleaning showcase glass. On the fourth Wednesday Al Sharp and Jerry Honetor applied the finish coat of paint on the ceilings of both new rooms and on the walls in the Library. I finished installing the wood trim, filled nail holes and applied a primer coat on all the wood trim. I also ordered the glass for the interior window in the library from West Orange Glass. Ginger, as usual, was there, polishing our silver. What would we do without her? Thank you Ginger!!!

The city's painting contractor has finished painting the museum, installing the lattice around the perimeter of the crawl space of both buildings, replacing rotten deck boards and sealing the permanently closed sliding doors on the Roper Building. It really looks great!! I think it is the best paint work that has ever been done on the buildings. Check it out the next time you are there.

Again, we had another very productive month with many of our volunteers pitching in to help in so many ways. Thanks to each of you who helped in some way. We couldn't do it without you!
